Profile Summary

Sharon Wilson is a Chartered Mediator (National Designation) and graduate of the Justice Institute of British Columbia Conflict Management Program (1992). She is one of the first formally trained Mediators in the Province, and has worked full-time in the field of Conflict Management as a Practitioner, Consultant and Trainer for over 20 years.

Sharon has extensive experience in the gas and oil industry related to production, pipeline, industry and landowner concerns, providing services since the inception of the ERCB program. Sharon has successfully facilitated or mediated over 750 cases related to gas and oil, agriculture, community, corporate and business matters, many of which have been multi-million dollar cases.

As a Conflict Management Practitioner and Consultant, Sharon has been facilitating both multi-party and bi-lateral disputes, designing of conflict management systems, facilitating strategy sessions for partnering, interest-based bargaining negotiations and community consultation, contracting on many major initiatives providing services of mediation, facilitation, public consultation, consensus building, assessment, capacity building, processes for anxiety and trauma associated with conflict, and other hybrid interest-based principled collaborative processes, to meet the client's needs. In addition Sharon has had a hand in training many of the mediators in western Canada.
