Dear Ms. Naubert,

I received the binder of material you sent to the AER by courier on Monday, October 16, 2017. On the instructions of the hearing panel, I have returned the material to you by mail.

As I indicated in several previous email communications between us, the panel will advise you in writing when written hearing submissions are required from you, and provide the dates for filing your submissions. The panel may also provide other directions relating to your submission, such as the issues that can or can't be addressed at the hearing, as well as letting you know about any filing requirements that need to be met. Typically, the AER requires the Applicant to file its hearing submissions first, and other hearing participants file after that, in response to the argument and evidence in the Applicant's written submission.

The panel has asked that you wait until you receive further direction before filing any further material. It is likely that you and other parties to the hearing will receive direction on the filing of submissions near the middle of November, once the panel has decided which parties in addition to you, Mr. Trotter and CNRL, can participate in the hearing.

As such, the panel has not looked at your material and has asked me to return it to you.

Please contact me if you have any further questions.

Sincerely,
